#WKPH23, Fall II Session

Learn concepts of lighting and posing used in outdoor portrait photography from a professional. There will be a discussion on composition, lighting and how these factors lead to a more personal and evocative photograph of the subject. There will be demonstrations on lighting, and how to mix flash and ambient light so that the photographer is more proactive in lighting a portrait subject. The effective use of a reflector will be covered. There will be opportunities for the students to put to work what they have learned during the workshop. Bring camera, flash and examples of your portraiture work (maximum 5 photographs).

Patrick Van Dusen graduated from Florida A&M University, majoring in photography, and he taught for 37 years at Daytona State College, retiring in April 2011. His photography experience includes photojournalism, portraits and weddings. He is the volunteer with the longest time of service for Stewart-Marchman-Act Behavioral Healthcare, a Daytona Beach rehabilitation facility, where he conducts therapeutic photography sessions.

The Crealdé Sculpture Garden provides a scenic backdrop for Patrick Van Dusen's Outdoor Portrait Workshop.
